

Aaron Durán is a project management professional at Abbott Laboratories, where his work allows him to travel internationally and collaborate with teams around the world, building connections with diverse groups.

Within Scouting, Aaron has been an active member of Pack 98 alongside his son, Aaronsito. While Aaron served as Pack 98's Committee Member, he supported efforts that promote inclusion and help welcome more Latino families into the program. His ability to speak Spanish has been a tremendous asset, allowing him to connect with and support Spanish-speaking families in the community.

Aaron also volunteers at his church in the Round Lake community, where he uses his project management skills to help organize roles and support the church's continued growth.

He is also involved with a network of Latino executives who travel to different parts of the world to share their faith and build connections with communities.
